Q: Modifying an email template and sending to a user I have an inbox template that contains the title of the current email and some headers. What I'd like to do is to make that header different per email, for instance "Please attach a copy of your assignment". If I insert the {!req.Email} dynamically, will I need to make two separate templates, one for the title and one for the different body, or does apex support the templating and what I'm asking is a simple way to make it work. Any suggestions would be appreciated, thanks. A: This isn't template based on the title as the subject of the email is dynamic, so it will be "Please attach a copy of your assignment". It will look for this and change the subject of the email dynamically, there is also a section to set the email in case someone wants to reply to the email. Just copy this out to a new
