Uconomix InfoBox User Guide: Uconomix InfoBox Settings: If you are wondering how you can change some of your settings in Uconomix InfoBox. We have created this step-by-step guide with all the necessary instructions and information you might want to know to manage your software to the fullest. Note: The steps are performed in a platform-independent manner, however you must have administrator rights on your PC to use Uconomix InfoBox settings manager. Changing the password There are two ways of changing the password: by using Windows' built-in password security feature and by using Uconomix InfoBox's password recovery feature. If the latter was not activated, enter the wrong password three times and an error message will appear. The incorrect password prompt will appear three times.

When the pop-up message appears, click OK and Uconomix InfoBox will ask for the current password and change it. To make sure you did not remember the original password, the pop-up message will appear again and you will have to change it for the third time. If you do not care about forgetting the original password, click Cancel without entering the current one and set a new password. Changing the key size

The key size can be changed to 256 or 512 bits. 512-bit algorithm is considered to be a more secure one, as it is less susceptible to brute-force attacks. There is no need to change the key size from 512 to 256 bits - the security is already guaranteed by the software. Using the information provided in the 'Key size' section in the software's configuration file, the maximum key size can be changed. Changing the box name The name of the box can be changed easily, just select the box name from the drop-down list and press the 'Change box name' button. Q: What can we say about the convergence of the sequence $x_n = \frac{1}{n}$? Given the convergent sequence $x_n = \frac{1}{n}$ Does the sequence always converge to 0? If yes, what can we say about the convergence of the sequence? If not, why not? A: Let's try to reason about this. Let x_n be this sequence. We have to compare it to 0. It is clear that $0 < x_n < 1$ for all n since $0 < \frac{1}{n} < 1$ and $n > 0$. Notice that x_n is decreasing. This is given by the following: $\frac{1}{n} < \frac{1}{n+1}$ Since we know the limit is 0, x_n must be less than 0 and we see that it is
