Police said a 36-year-old white woman was robbed at approximately 1:30 p.m. Sunday at an apartment complex on Lakeview Drive. According to the victim, as she was walking to a vehicle in the parking lot of the apartment complex, a black male walked up to her, pushed her against a wall and took her purse, which was allegedly full of cash, police said. The male then fled in the direction of Forest Park Apartments. Anyone with information about this robbery is encouraged to contact the robbery detective at 615-742-7463 or Crime Stoppers at 615-742-7463. Sepsis defines a group of conditions characterized by inflammatory host response to infection and is a major cause of death in the United States. In general, sepsis is defined as a systemic inflammatory host response to infection. This response, which is orchestrated by the innate immune system, may precipitate a downregulation of the adaptive immune system resulting in profound immunosuppression and coagulopathy. Recognized as a leading cause of death in the United States, sepsis encompasses a broad clinical entity, from uncomplicated infection to severe sepsis with multiple organ dysfunction and, finally, septic shock with circulatory and metabolic abnormalities. Management of these life-threatening syndromes is frequently challenging and requires the expertise of a multidisciplinary team, including nurses.
